WHAT IS COLLAGEN INDUCTION THERAPY AND HOW DOES IT WORK?

Collagen induction therapy (also known as microneedling) is a noninvasive skin regenerating treatment. It is performed using a device known as a dermaroller which produces a series of controlled micropunctures into the skin using hundreds of tiny needles. This process makes the skin release growth factors. it also induces the production of collagen and elastin which are responsible for providing structure, thickness and elasticity to skin.

BENEFITS

Collagen induction therapy is execellent for plumping skin, increasing firmness, smoothing texture the texture and produces dewy looking complexion. It can be used to target:

- wrinkles
- scarring
- uneven or dull skin tone and pigmentation (including Rosacea)
- thin and loose skin
- stretchmarks

WHAT THE TREATMENT INVOLVES

After a detailed consultation, our doctor will design a treatment protocol just for you. This will combine microneedling and micronutirent boosters chosen to target your skin concerns and aims. Prior to the treatment the skin will be prepped and the numbed with anaesthetic cream.

DOWN TIME & AFTERCARE

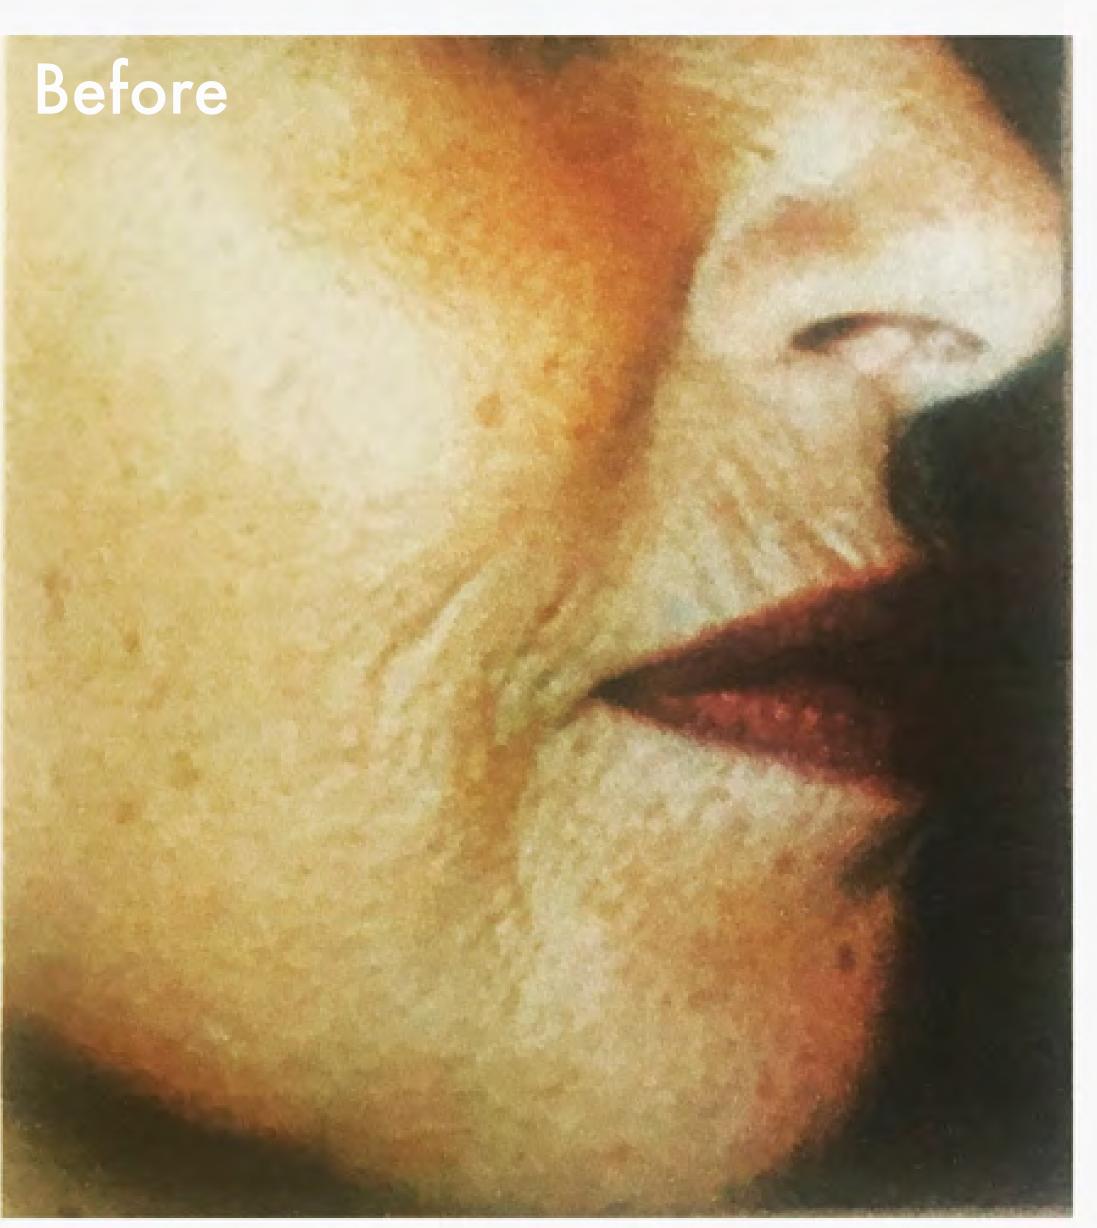

This varies from person to person but there is usually mild redness and swelling immediately after a treatment. This may last for a few hours or even 1-2 days depending on your skin's tolerance levels. Some people may also experience some brusing after the procedure. Following treatment we advise you must moisturise your skin and use SPF. We will recommend a simple skincare routine to boost the result of your peel with products that you can easily purchase from any retailer if you don't have them already.

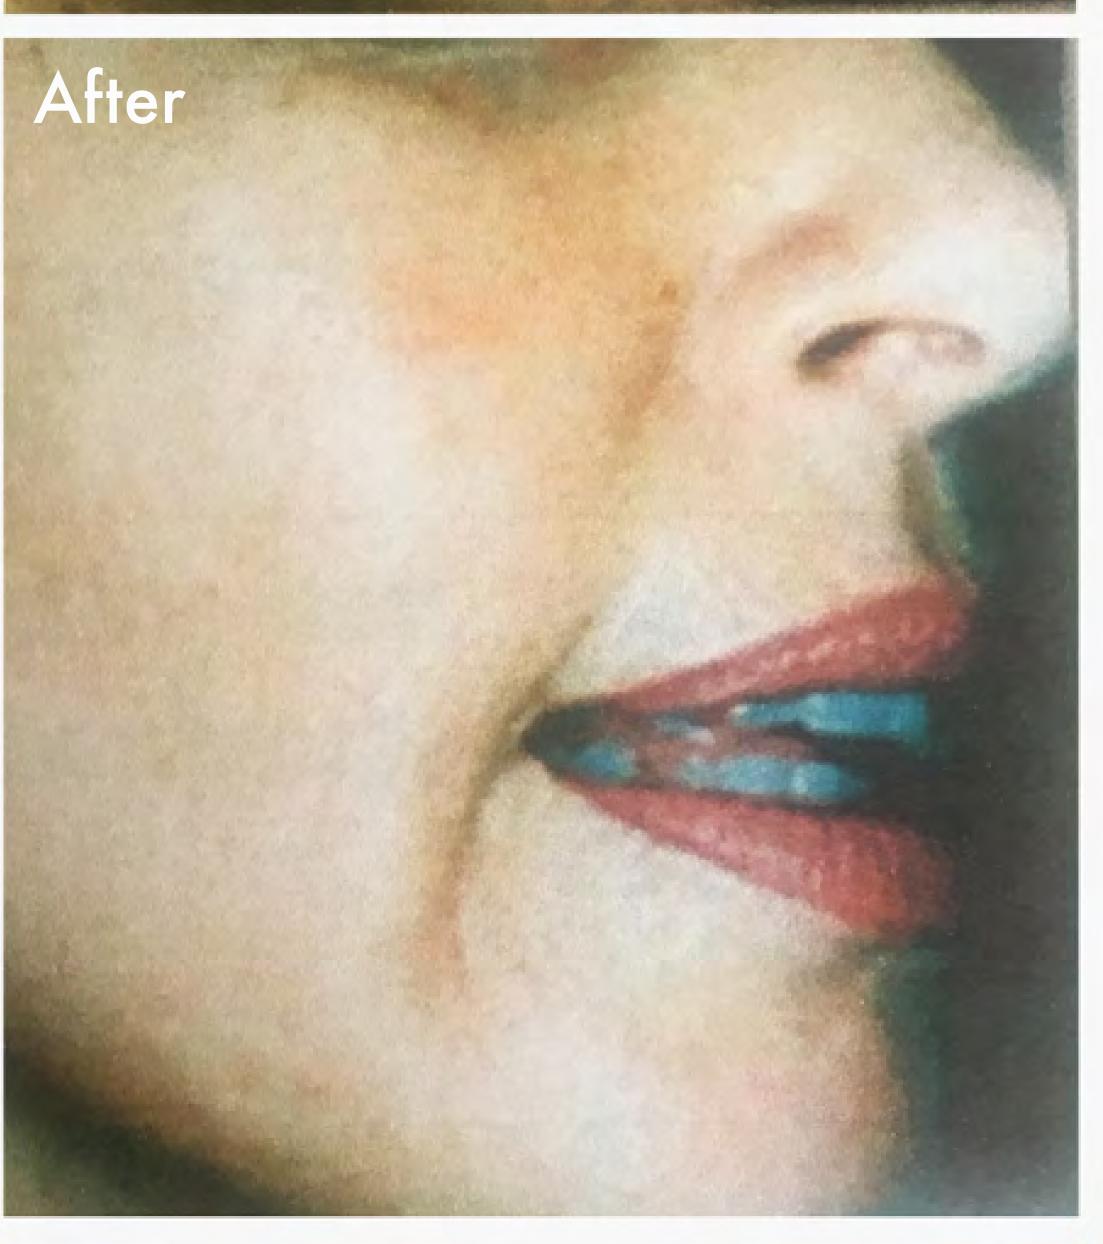

FREQUENCY AND NUMBER OF TREATMENTS

This depends on your skin goals. Typically we recommend 3-5 treatments every 4-6 weeks followed by one treatment every 6-9 months for mainetenace of results.
